HOW DID THE FUND PERFORM AND WHAT AFFECTED ITS PERFORMANCE?

For the 6-month period ended June 30, 2024, the Fund underperformed its benchmark, the MSCI Emerging Markets Index.

WHAT FACTORS INFLUENCED PERFORMANCE

Our underperformance during the period was mostly attributable to our stock selection in China and Brazil, combined with our overweight allocation to Brazil. Meanwhile, our selection in Taiwan had the largest positive impact on our performance.

At the sector level, our stock selection in materials contributed the most to our performance, while our selection in consumer discretionary was the biggest detractor.

POSITIONING

Our largest overweights by country are China and Brazil, while India and Taiwan are our largest underweights. At the sector level, the portfolio is overweight materials, consumer discretionary, and energy, and is underweight information technology and health care.

We have adjusted the make-up of our China portfolio, adding higher-quality names that have recently become attractive. We also added some India exposure, largely still looking at infrastructure-related names given the need for public spending. South Africa was an area where we saw volatility into the elections, but the results positively surprised the market. We identified a short list of quality companies early on that we would buy should a better-than-expected outcome occur, and we were able to act quickly.
